There was a big expectation today that because we were sailing the odd week in the month, there would be plenty of wind. Sadly, this was not the case and we had similar conditions to the ones experienced over the last few months. The good news was that the light winds did not die down in the afternoon and so we were able to race right up to our finish time. The Soling 1Ms were first up and the day was won by Sid (22 points), with Ian coming second (24 points) on a countback from Terry who came third (24 points). In the 10R racing, Ian had sheeting problems in the first race and so had to retire for the day. The winner after 6 races was Sid (13 points), with Maurice coming in second (16 points), followed by Allan (17 points) in third place.
