First the good news - we finally had some quality wind! Now the bad news - after the severe storms of the past week, the rain continued to bucket down and the racing was abandoned. The old gnarled tree on the edge of the launching area is now on an even greater lean due to the strong winds and will eventually fall over. Once the decision was made to abandon the day, the skippers decided to have a look at the proposed sailing venue for the 'Festival of the Winds' which will be held in November at The Entrance. The conclusion was that this site will need to be assessed after the storm conditions have abated as the tide was running strongly out to sea. Because there were no results from today, the skippers wanted to include the three rounds of 10 Rater sailing from day 2. These have been included in the final results for the 2007 Match Racing event.
